Tony Ortega Murals Painted at DCAC

Tony Ortega, a local visual artist, visited DCAC to complete a special project. Tony has painted murals in Denver schools, community organizations, health clinics and more for more than 25 years. In mid-July, Tony spent three days at DCAC creating two beautiful murals.

Part of Tony's work is to include children in the painting process. Twelve clients and friends of DCAC helped Tony paint the murals over the three days. During these three days, Tony was able to teach the children three different painting techniques. We are so thankful for Tony and the children who helped complete the murals.

DCAC: Where Children & Families Come First

Denver Children's Advocacy Center

The Denver Children's Advocacy Center (DCAC) is a nonprofit organization that provides a continuum of services to high-risk and traumatized children and their family members in English and Spanish. Our programs that we provide are listed below:

At DCAC, we believe that children and their families come first. If you are interested in any of our services or have questions about them, please contact Raquel Hernandez, DCAC's Intake Manager, at Raquel@DenverCAC.org or 303.996.8594.

Meet DCAC's Bilingual Forensic Interviewer, Natalia!

1. What is your role at DCAC? I am a Bilingual Forensic Interviewer.

2. What is your favorite thing about working at DCAC? I love working on a holistic team of experts who serve children in all different aspects of their lives.

3. If you could have a superpower, what would it be and why? Mind reading so that I could understand people better! But only if I could turn it off and on.

4. Who are your biggest role models? My biggest role models are the women I've worked with in the past who are educators and advocates for children's rights. I have learned so much from them, like my friend Bethany, an elementary school teacher, and attorneys Laura, Gabi, and Rebecca at the Florence Immigrant and Refugee Rights Project.

5. What is a fun fact about yourself? I am an experimental baker! I don't have any food allergies but I love to concoct new recipes for friends and family who do.
